NAWBO Silicon Valley is Honoring Corporate Partners

The National Association of Women Business Owners – Silicon Valley is celebrating locally based corporations that support them. The meeting is scheduled for March 20, 2007 at 11:30 at the Capital Club, 50 West San Fernando Street, Suite 1700, San Jose, CA 95113.

It is through the commitment of these Corporate Partners that enable the organization to operate and offer the quality of information and networking that moves women forward to the next level of success. NAWBO-SV offers women business owners access to others like them who have successfully developed their businesses as a wealth generating asset.

Denise Coley, who is Director of Supplier Diversity Business Development for Cisco Systems, will be speaking on supplier diversity programs today and in the future and what women owned businesses need to move forward to win contracts from large corporations.

Cisco, among other corporations based in the Silicon Valley, is committed to helping women owned businesses win contract awards from them. President and CEO John Chambers states “The Cisco Supplier Diversity Business Development Program is integral to our success. We recognize that supplier diversity not only makes good business sense, but that it is a business imperative in order to maintain our position in the IT industry.”
